Prior to 7 December, the recruits wore red epaulets; after that date, they wore red-bordered black epaulets.

The previous information that Unit Besruchko was a signal unit appeared to be incorrect since the majority of the soldiers wore red-bordered black epaulets with artillery insignia. However, the soldiers who wore black-bordered black epaulets with signal insignia apparently also belonged to the unit.

See Kaserne: (2203) Unit Lieutenant Colonel Stetsenko, with soldiers wearing red-bordered black epaulets with artillery insignia.
 The quartering area of this unit probably included another unit, accounts of which were also audited by Lieutenant Colonel Stetsenko.
 Unit Major Zemyonov, with soldiers wearing red-bordered black epaulets with tank insignia.

Gentzrode Estate: (2206) Unit Major Khrom, with soldiers wearing black-bordered black epaulets.

13. On 15 October, the tank positions at the firing ranges of the Gentzrode training area north of Neuruppin were removed. Soldiers stated that tank firing practices at the post training grounds were to be discontinued, in order not to endanger the villages situated in the direction of fire. In the future, the Gentzrode firing ranges will be utilized for machine gun firing practices. Tank firing practices were to be conducted at the Wittstock firing ranges.

14. On 7, 8, 13, 14 and 23 December, 4 to 8 tanks of the new type engaged in driving practice and firing with machine guns at the Gentzrode training area. The approach road of the tanks and the training area were heavily guarded during the practice. On 27 and 28 December, a column of driving school trucks went from the direction of Neuruppin toward Katerbow and vice versa.

1. [redacted] Comment. The information does not indicate any change in the distribution of the units of the 12th Gds Tank Div in the military installations of the Neuruppin post. [redacted] The assumption in the reference report that the 186th Gds Sig Bn returned from the See Kaserne to the Friedrich-Franz Kaserne is not supported by the present information, [redacted]

[redacted] Furthermore, it is undetermined which of the two installations quarters the 497th Arty Regt. The regiment or at least elements of it reportedly transferred from the Friedrich-Franz Kaserne to the SeeKaserne in August in connection with the reequipment of the mortar regiments. The second unit which, according to the present report, was stationed in the quartering area of the 226th Mort Regt (Unit Stetsenko) may be the 497th Arty Regt or the signal battalion. In the latter case, Unit Besruchko might be identical with the artillery regiment.

3. Comment. New four-seat sedans, similar to the former German Wehrmacht Volkswagen were observed in Vogelsang (25th Tank Div) and Zeithain (9th Tank Div) during the second half of December. [redacted] Since vehicles of this type were observed with three tank divisions, it appears possible that at least the tank divisions will be reequipped.
